Appropriate Regulatory Treatment for Broadband Access to the Internet
over Cable Facilities, CS Docket No. 02-52

Notice of Oral Ex Parte Presentation

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On Monday, August 19, 2002 Leslie Vadasz, President of Intel Capital, and Peter Pitsch, Communications Policy Director, Intel Corporation, met with FCC Commissioner Kathleen Abernathy. In the course of the discussion Mssrs. Vadasz and Pitsch made several points which are also set out in the High Tech Broadband Coalition's pleadings filed in the above referenced FCC broadband proceedings including:

- Intel believes that the best way to promote widespread affordable broadband is to promote strong broadband facilities-based competition among cable modem, wire line broadband (xDSL/fiber), satellite, fixed and wireless alternatives.
- It believes that the FCC should strive to achieve a minimal regulatory environment that encourages all companies to make the costly and economically risky investments in last mile broadband facilities we need to get the full benefits of the Internet.
- Specifically, it believes that the Commission should refrain from imposing unbundling obligations on new last mile broadband facilities, including fiber and DSL electronics deployed on the customer side of the central office.
- DSL services already face competition from the market-leading cable modem service and emerging satellite and wireless broadband services.
- Minimizing these unbundling obligations will reward those who take the risk of investing and thereby promote facilities-based competition and deployment.
- A ruling on the broadband bundling reform should be the FCC's top priority.

Pursuant to Section 1.1206(b) of the Commission's Rules, an electronic copy of this letter is being submitted to the Secretary's Office and to Commissioner Kathleen Abernathy. Please inform me if any questions should arise in connection with this filing.

Respectfully submitted,

Peter K. Pitsch
